

FINANCE CAMPAIGN FOR BOYS BANDS BEGINS TOMORROW

Maysville People to be Given Another Opportunity to Contribute to the Support of the Cardinal and Horseshoe Bands.

One financial campaign in which the directors anticipate no trouble will begin tomorrow—Wednesday—and once again the people of Maysville will be given an opportunity to make contributions to the up keep of the two bands which have brought Maysville so much favorable advertising and which have developed many of our youngsters into accomplished musicians.

Colonel J. Harboure Russell, manager of the bands, and the dynamo which has kept the bands going at full speed, announced the campaign Tuesday morning.

The Cardinal band has just completed its season with many victories to its credit. Every place the band has been heard it has received highest compliments and the name of Maysville has been lauded because of the system of training and maintaining these bands.

Every person who has during the past year contributed to the bands will be given an opportunity to continue their contribution for another year and other citizens will also be given an opportunity to make a contribution. If the directors do not see you and you desire to help finance these organizations, your contribution will be gratefully received by Colonel Russell or any member of the directorate.

BIDS WANTED.

HANNA GIVES BAND CREDIT FOR HELPING MAKE FAIR

Commissioner W. C. Hanna Says Cardinal Band was a Contributing Factor to Big Success of State Fair.

The following complimentary letter has just been received:
Frankfort, Ky., September 25, 1922.
Mr. J. Harboure Russell,
Maysville, Ky.,

Dear Mr. Russell: Now that the Kentucky State Fair is over I want to congratulate you upon the merits of your Maysville Boys' Band. I regard it as a splendid attraction.

The fair management also appreciated your hearty cooperation in playing at all times when called upon and at any place and also the quality of music rendered.

The boys attracted a great deal of attention in Louisville while there and your band served a great purpose in advertising our State Fair in sections of the state where we had not drawn heavily from.

The 1922 Kentucky State Fair was the largest fair in the history of Kentucky and I think your band was one of the contributing features.

With best wishes for the success of the band in the future, I am,

Yours very sincerely,

W. C. HANNA.

JUDGE BINGHAM IS EXPECTED TO CALL TOBACCO MEN SOON

Founder of Burley Co-operative Likely to Issue Summons to National Conference in Kentucky At Early Date.

Lexington, Ky., Sept. 26. — The call for a national conference of tobacco co-operative association executives, which has been planned by Judge Robert W. Bingham, James C. Stone and Aaron Sapiro, of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association, and which is expected to be held either in Lexington or Louisville this fall, is expected within the next few days. Those who will take part in the conference are the presidents, sales managers, directors of warehouses, secretaries, field service chiefs and publicity directors and the conference will discuss problems of mutual interest to all the tobacco co-operators and the co-operative marketing movement generally.

Judge Bingham has been busy in the dark tobacco district, speaking in the effort to organize the growers of dark tobacco in most of the important centers and has not had time to devote to the details of the proposed conference for the past several weeks, but it was said at the offices of the Burley association that he is expected to issue the call for the conference soon.

Nearly 250,000 tobacco growers will be represented in the conference, including 80,000 in the bright tobacco district of Virginia and the Carolinas, 70,000 in the Burley district and the remainder in the Wisconsin and Connecticut cigar tobacco districts.

The field service division of the burley association reported more than 600 new members for the past week and workers busy in every section of the district giving to all outside growers the opportunity to come in before November 6, when the books will close for the year. Good word is being done in many counties, and especially in Anderson county, where a considerable number of growers have come into the association at the solicitation of Albert T. Day and J. D. Baxter, who have been assisting the local organization there. In Green county, Chairman Woodson Lewis reported a successful drive Thursday and Friday, and in the Huntington territory, Manager Harry B. Carpenter and his staff have added many members.

PROUD! YES! WHY?

Maysville is proud because it has the best Boys' Band in the country. Because everybody in town boasts and supports it. Because the members of the band are faithful in attendance to practice and are gentlemanly and well behaved on tour and at home.

Proud because it has two sections, the "Cardinals" senior and the "Horseshoe" junior band; which makes a place for all children in Maysville who want to learn music free of cost to them.

Proud, because they make good music in sacred, popular and classic selections.

Proud, because the Maysville Boys' Band has a national reputation in the United States and Canada.

Proud, because it has put Maysville on the map as a music center and has advertised our merchants (and others who make the band possible) as nothing else has.

Proud, of the fact that since our organization there are seven community bands within 16 miles of Maysville. We are proud of them, and because in many towns and cities where the Maysville Band has played, they have organized bands, a good movement and we are proud to have started it.

Proud, because the band has the best manager in the world—Col. J. B. Russell.

Because it has the best director in the world—Geo. D. Barnard. Proud, because Maysville is proud of us. You will pardon our pride when you hear the "Kentucky Cardinals" play, named for the sweet song bird, the Kentucky cardinal, in his coat of red, charming the eye and pleasing the ear.

The "Horseshoe" Band is a lucky bunch of youthful youngsters who are advanced to the "Cardinals" as they merit and our needs demands. We are proud of their increasing proficiency.

SCOBEE HARMAN IS REFUSED BAIL

Winchester Man Charged With Leon Renaker's Murder Unable To Get Bail.

Winchester, Ky., Sept. 26. — Scobee Harman, one of the central figures in the Leon Renaker murder case, Monday was held by Judge W. L. Shackelford in the circuit court without bail for trial December 11.

Harman was in court with his attorneys, his father and mother and seemed unaffected by the ruling which denies him the freedom which Reese Fox and Mrs. Leon Renaker, also indicted with him, are enjoying under bond of $5,000 each.

When the motion for bail for Harman was presented to the court, the commonwealth presented the proposition that if bail was granted, it must be done on the presumption of Harman's innocence, whereas the commonwealth contended the burden of proof of innocence is on the defendant. The court did not decide that question, but merely overruled the motion for bail.

Harman, Fox and Mrs. Renaker are under indictment charged with conspiracy to kill Leon Renaker, found dead in bed at his home last July. His skull had been crushed. The Renaker estate, including life insurance, is estimated at more than $50,000.

BRITISH BLOCK TURK ADVANCE TO THE STRAITS

English Troops on March to Block the Advance of Turks Into Neutral Zone—Chamak Is Menaced.

Constantinople, Sept. 26.—The British march from Chanak toward Erkenkui, where the Turks have taken up a position in the neutral zone, has started it was reported here today.

According to this report the destination of the British troops is Kusu-keui, which is seven miles south of Chanak, the British stronghold, and about three miles north of Erkenkui, the Kemalists' position.

The purpose of the British march, it was reported, is to take up a position at Kusu-keui in order to block the Turks in case they start to advance toward Chanak.

It was reported further that the Turks were rushing reinforcements of troops, machine guns and heavy artillery to Erkenkui, which would indicate that the Kemalists do not intend to withdraw, but are desirous of strengthening their position.

These reinforcements were made in the face of an ultimatum served on Mustapha Kemal at Smyrna today by the Allied admirals there that the Turkish forces must be withdrawn from the neutral zone of the straits within 48 hours.

The invasion at Erkenkui, which threatens to upset the allied peace plans in the near east is the second by the Kemalists.

The Kemalists 48 hours ago entered the neutral zone, but, after their commanders stated they do so because they were under the impression the British had left, the Turks withdrew.

RECTOR AND SEXTON'S WIFE WERE TO ELOPE

Letter By Mrs. Mills Explains Trip to Japan; Pastoral Was In Readiness.

New Brunswick, N. J., Sept. 25. — Several clues were found today by detectives investigating the double shooting of the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, rector of the Church of St. John the Evangelist, and Mrs. James Mills, wife of the sexton, to support the new theory that the couple intended to elope to the Orient.

All his papers and other church effects had been placed in such order by the slain rector, detectives said they learned, that the work of the pastorate could be undertaken by a successor with the least possible difficulty.

The first inkling of an intended elopement came when Prosecutor Stricker of Middlesex, was informed that a relative of Mrs. Mills had a letter from her in which she herself told in detail of her plans to elope to Japan with Mr. Hall.

Detectives are seeking a woman, who, while attending the funeral services of Mr. Hall, is reported to have remarked in an audible tone to her neighbor:

"Well, they are carrying him out of the church now. They didn't get to Japan after all."

GEORGIA SENATOR DIED SUDDENLY AT THE CAPITAL TODAY

Senator Tom Watson, One of the Most Picturesque Men in America, Died Early Tuesday of Asthma Attack.

Washington Sept. 26.—Senator Tom Watson of Georgia died suddenly at 2:40 a. m. today at his home here of acute asthma from which he had suffered for years.

Senator Watson had a severe attack of the malady a week ago, but improved sufficiently to attend the final session of the Senate last Friday. His physicians protested at that time he was too weak, but Watson said he felt all right.

Watson ate hearty dinner last night and apparently was in better health than he had been for some time. A little later he suffered a recurrence of the asthmatic seizure and his physicians were unable to save him.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed, but the late senator's burial will occur at his home in Thomson, Ga., where Mrs. Watson went some time ago. Mrs. Watson had returned to Thomson to recuperate after a severe illness. There are no children.

The Georgia senator, who was one of the most picturesque figures in public life, was 66 years old. As a member of the House, as an editor, as Populist candidate for vice president and as senator, he attracted widespread attention because of his fiery speech and writing and his aggressive championing of the causes in which he was interested.

Forty hours devotion began at St. Patrick's church Tuesday morning.

THE STRIKE INJUNCTION

The action of the federal government in seeking an injunction restraining the striking railroad shopmen from interfering with transportation was a logical development. The surrender of President Wilson and an intimidated congress six years ago to arbitrary demands and threats of the railroad brotherhoods made it inevitable that this conflict would arise, and that the government would be called upon to assert its supremacy over all classes, groups or interests.

On the surface the action appears merely a move to break the strike. But it has a far deeper significance. In the attempt of an organized group to paralyze an instrumentality necessary to the life of the nation there is raised essentially the issue of sovietism, and that challenge the government has accepted.

When the railroads of the country were turned back to private management in the spring of 1920 they came under the new transportation act known as the Esch-Cummins law. A main purpose of this measure was to prevent a tie-up of transportation by either the companies or its organized workers or both. With this aim it created the railroad labor board, with the function of hearing and determining disputes between the carrier and their employees and so preventing interruptions of service. A clause prohibiting railroad strikes was strongly supported but was eliminated at demand of the unions, while both the companies and the unions opposed a provision making the decisions of the board enforceable, and the politicians in congress yielded that point also.

The unions accepted the law, and straightway applied for wage increases in addition to those made under government control, and in July, 1920, the board granted increases aggregating $600,000,000 a year. It likewise sanctioned the application of nation-wide union rules governing conditions of work, to the great advantage of the unions and to the detriment of the railroads and the public. A year later the board ordered a wage reduction, the cost of living having receded, and subsequently the railroad freight rates were correspondingly cut. Last spring the railroads asked further wage reductions, and, after exhaustive hearings, at which the unions were fully heard, decreases were ordered for three classes of workers.

Forthwith the shopmen voted a strike, and on July 1 more than half of them quit work. By this action they undertook to paralyze transportation in order to force nullification of the labor board's findings. In other words, they repudiated and defied the authority of a lawfully constituted tribunal, the one agency authorized to settle wage dispute raised and an agency whose rulings the shopmen had accepted when they gained by doing so.

The issue was no longer between the railroads and their employees, but between the unions and the government. The federal board announced that the strikers had divested themselves of the right to claim the benefits of its decisions on wages and rules. President Harding likewise stated the issue in a formal proclamation on July 11. Citing the fact that the railroad labor board is "an agency of the government created by law and charged with the duty of adjusting disputes between railroad operators and employees," he declared that "men who choose to accept employment under the terms of the decision have the same indisputable right to work that others have to decline to work," and he called upon "all persons to refrain from all interference with the lawful efforts to maintain interstate transportation and the carrying of the United States mails."

Upon the basis of these official utterances the railroads posted notices that strikers who did not return within a specified time would lose their seniority rights. The struggle not ending, the president resorted to patient and persistent efforts at mediation, but without avail. Even attempts by the railroad brotherhoods to arrange a compromise failed, the strikers rejecting the proposals. Meanwhile, outbreaks of violence and acts of interference with railroad service in many parts of the country became serious in the aggregate; passenger trains were abandoned, locomotives were damaged, rails were torn up and shopmen who had disregarded the strike order were subjected to assault and intimidation. The situation was aggravated by the coal strike; with a fuel shortage imminent the capacity of the railroads to move coal when mining was resumed was being seriously impaired. In this emergency President Harding told congress that he would "use all the power of the government to maintain transportation," and the injunction move naturally resulted.

The essential fact that stands out in the record is that the strike is not against the railroads but against the government. The unions have undertaken to nullify by force the decrees of a tribunal created by law, by the method paralyzing transportation. The fundamental question, therefore, is whether an organized group shall be permitted to defy the government and impose its will upon the nation by force.

But another vital issue is raised. The country is face to face at last with the question whether men employed in operating utilities necessary to the existence of society have the right to strike. That this grave matter can properly be dealt with in injunction proceedings will be widely challenged; many Americans will doubt the justice of an attempt to settle by judicial decree an issue which lies in the province of legislation by congress. We think, however, that the courts may be relied upon not to grant an injunction which goes beyond the legitimate bounds of such an order. In so far as the order is designed to prevent interference with transportation, and not to nullify constitutional rights, it will have the approval and loyal support of all good citizens.—Philadelphia North American.

BOOK REVIEWS ADDED TO PROGRAM OF W. L. W.

In another effort to provide amusement for the thousands of persons who listen in on Tuesday, Thursday and Friday nights, when the Crosley Manufacturing Company of Cincinnati, is operating its radio station, W. L. W. managers of the station have provided for the broadcasting of book reviews, one to be read every night the plant is in operation.

These reviews will be provided by Paul Briol, proprietor of the Book Shelf, whose wide experience as a reader from a strong will and the newspaperman will aid him materially in writing interesting and educational reviews. Books by the best authors of the present day will be reviewed briefly, and interesting anecdotes regarding the authors will be read.

This little feature will be worked in with the regular evening concerts and is certain to appeal to the many book lovers who desire advance information pertaining to the latest publications.

The difference between perseverance and obstinacy is that one often comes from a strong will and the other from a strong won't.

WASHINGTON LETTER

Washington. — "It is undoubtedly true as remarked by a well known Senator that almost every important measure pending before Congress calls for the appropriation of large sums of money from the United States Treasury," says the Republican Publicity Association, through its President, Hon. Jonathan Bourne, Jr. "But it would be wrong to saddle upon Congress alone responsibility for large appropriations. Although Congress is vested with the power to make appropriations, no Congressman has a personal desire to make the total appropriations large. In practically every instance, the demand for an appropriation originates not with members of Congress but with the people on in the several states.

"The desire to shift the burden of taxation, the desire seemingly to get something for nothing, causes individuals, organizations, communities and states to appeal to their Federal representatives for national appropriations for undertakings of a more or less local interest. The same sort of appeal that originates in one locality originates in a hundred or a thousand others, and the communications from constituents which pour in upon members of Congress induce them to support the appropriations which make up the burden of which taxpayers complain.

"It is needless to recount the various purposes for which these appropriations are asked. There is the demand for Federal funds to control almost every pest to which agricultural crops of every kind are subject. There is the every-growing demand that the United States government shall supply not only supervision but direct assistance in controlling almost every form of human disease. The United States government now controls the enforcement of the liquor laws which was formerly left to the states and municipalities. Through the Federal Trade Commission the government is attempting to diminish fraud. The government has joined with the states in a cooperative system of highway improvement. It has also joined with the states in a co-operative plan for proper medical attention in maternity cases. It is proposed that the government shall erect a public building in every city or town having a first, second or third class postoffice. It is proposed that the government shall extend its work in the construction of internal canals; that the government shall undertake the protection of the banks of the Mississippi; that the government shall expend more millions on Muscle Shoals.

"These are only a few of the projects which call for new or larger sums from the Federal treasury, and many of them have merit. But they indicate the reason why government expenditures continue to grow.

"In the ultimate analysis, responsibility for large appropriations rests not with Congress but with the citizenship of the country. It is useless to write to members of Congress in opposition to large appropriations in general but at the same time write to them in favor of particular appropriations. The two positions are inconsistent and irreconcilable. Federal appropriations will become materially less or the increase will be checked only when individual citizens in large numbers write to their Senators and Congressmen protesting against, instead of favoring, the specific schemes advanced upon the mistaken theory that the public can get something from the United States government without paying for it. Payment must be made in some form or other and Federal taxation is quite often the most expensive means of paying."

POLO CIGARETTES.

"Fifteen better cigarettes for ten cents" is the inducement offered to smokers by the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co., in introducing Polo Cigarettes in this city.

Backed by a liberal use of newspaper advertising, Polos are being given widespread publicity with the object of convincing smokers that for the price Polo is the best cigarette value in the market.

Realizing that it is a true indication of "old times" to be able again to push a quality cigarette in a dime package, the manufacturers have adopted a lively new slogan for the present advertising campaign. "That's more like it" is the caption which accompanies the photographic cartoons of delighted Polo smokers.

It is believed that Polo will "catch on" instantly, not only because of its attractive price, but because of the widely recognized reputation of Liggett & Myers for putting good tobacco into their products. Tobacco experts concede that Polo is an unusually good-tasting smoke. This is due to the fine quality of Virginia, Burley and Turkish tobaccos used, and also the unusual way in which the tobaccos are blended.

The black and red package is a fitting container for a quality smoke—one of the handsomest packages that has ever been put out. Nor have the manufacturers skimped in quantity in order to put up a quality smoke in a dime package. Very Polo cigarette is full weight and full size.

GOVERNOR'S LETTER PRAISING POOL IS READ BY BINGHAM

Founder of Burley Co-Operative is Helping Actively in Similar Organization in Dark Tobacco District.

Hopkinsville, Ky. — Judge R. W. Bingham, of Louisville, beginning a week's campaign in Western Kentucky here Monday afternoon in the interest of the Dark Tobacco Growers' Association, created much enthusiasm by reading the following letter from Governor Morrow:

"I hesitatingly indorse the movement now under way in Western Kentucky looking to the reformation of a co-operative association of dark tobacco growers modeled on the plan of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Association. From every section of the Blue Grass I have heard nothing but good reports from the members of the burley association and it is freely predicted by men of the highest business sagacity that the burley association will continue to grow in usefulness and in service to those who grow and sell the crop.

"From every standpoint it appears to me that the co-operative plan of marketing one of Kentucky's chief crops will solve one of the state's chief problems, produce more stability in price and bring a very great measure of good to all concerned.

"It is my judgment that the co-operative plan is no longer a theory; it has demonstrated itself by its work. For this and for many other reasons I am glad to add my indorsement of the movement looking to the organization of the dark tobacco growers of Kentucky into a co-operative association."

Former Attorney General James Breathitt introduced Judge Bingham, who advised growers to study the contracts carefully before they pledged their acres emphasized the fact that the contracts run for five years and that members must adhere rigidly to the procedure outlined. Heretofore the buyer fixed the price for the tobacco and no wit is the farmer's own fault if he does not obtain his own price. He cited the case of the burley growers, who in 1921 received as low as a quarter of a cent a pound for the products of long months of toil, but who this year, under co-operative marketing, have already received twice as much as they did for their entire crop last year.

HUNTERS SHOULD CONSULT GAME LAWS FOR 1922.

All persons contemplating hunting in any state or territory in the United States or in Canada are advised by the United States Department of Agriculture to obtain from the state game commissioner of that state or territory the full text of its game laws. A summary of the provisions of federal, state, and provincial statutes, and a list of officials from whom copies of state game laws may be obtained, is contained in Farmers' Bulletin 1283, Game Laws 1922, by George A. Lawyer, chief United States game warden, and Frank L. Earnshaw. The bulletin is available free upon application to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

The object of the bulletin is to aid in the administration of the provisions of the migratory-bird treaty act and the Lacey act, by presenting in convenient form the provisions of game legislation for the use of law-enforcement agencies, conservationists and others.

It is only by observing the open season dates published in the bulletin that hunters of migratory game birds can avoid violating either Federal or state laws, as the Federal regulations operate in many cases to shorten the seasons fixed by state statute.

A SWEET LITTLE BABY BOY

Makes a Bright Spot in Every Home. A Comfort in Years to Come

Park Rapids, Minnesota. — "I have taken your medicine — Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound — when I was a girl for pains and before and after my marriage. I now have a sweet little baby boy and will send you his picture if you wish to publish it. My sisters also take your medicine and find it a great help, and I recommend it to those who suffer before their babies are born."

To marry and arrive at middle age without children is a great disappointment to many women. Think of the joy and comfort other women have in their children as they grow older.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped to bring great happiness to many families by restoring women to health. Often the childless home is due to a run down condition of the wife, which may be helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It brought health and happiness into the home of Mrs. Johnson. Why not to yours?
